Defining Design in Richmond

Room Design With A Carytown Flair

Defining Design in Richmond has been developed as a showcase for our area designers and suppliers to share their latest creative ideas and inspiration with Housetrends readers. Each feature will have a theme and provide tips how to incorporate these ideas in your own home. You'll learn where to locate the decorative items, materials, and furnishings in our area and get exposed to the individual style of Richmond's design professionals.

For designer Susan Jamieson of Bridget Beari Designs and many of her local colleagues, Carytown is a treasure chest of inspiring decorative items, fabrics, and furniture. Whether Susan is looking to add a blast of color in a modern table lamp, or add the rich texture of an antique table, she knows that within the Carytown community she will likely find "just the right thing" for the room.

The living room featured here has been created as a display window at Leo Burke Furniture, a major Carytown shopping destination. Susan utilized decorative pieces found in Carytown stores. The result is a warm, colorful living room featuring both traditional and modern elements, shiny reflective surfaces and naturally textured elements.

Jack Burke, owner of Leo Burke, exclaimed "It's always a pleasure to work with talented designers but working with them in our showroom window was a real treat! Leo Burke has been a resource for discriminating designers and clients since 1958."
